

Dr. Bakirli Erifyli

(erifylibakirli@yahoo.gr)

Short CV

Erifyli Bakirli holds a PhD in Criminology from Panteion University. For many years, she has taught Criminology at the Hellenic Police Officers' Academy and the Fire Service Academy. She also teaches in the postgraduate program of the Hellenic Open University titled "Criminal and Criminological Approaches to Corruption, Economic Crime, and Organized Crime", as well as a course titled "Forensic Psychology" within the Department of Psychology at Metropolitan College.

She serves as an instructor for the seminars titled "Applied Criminology: Inside the Mind of an Offender" and "Economic Crime: The Crime Behind the Crime" offered as part of the continuing education programs at the Centre for Lifelong Learning (KEDIVIM) of Panteion University. She is the author of the monographs "Contemporary Governance and Crime Control" (2018, Nomiki Bibliothiki, Athens) and "Modern Technology and Anti-Crime Policy" (2019, Nomiki Bibliothiki, Athens).

She has participated in Greek and international scientific conferences and symposia, and her research has been published in academic journals and edited volumes, in both Greek and English. Among other roles, she serves as Special Secretary of the Hellenic Society of Criminology and is a member of the European Society of Criminology.

Her immediate research interests include crime control, governance of security, forms of community and private policing, contemporary crime policy, mass surveillance technologies, forensic psychology, economic crime, and organized crime.